JANE BREESE,
Senior Mistress of Ceremonies.

TREE DAY.

Owing to two or three rainy days, the College Campus made as beautiful a background as could well be desired for the tree day exercises, which occurred on Saturday, June fourth. About half-past three in the afternoon, the class processions began to form; the Seniors and Juniors starting from College Hall, the Sophomores from the Shakespeare House and the Freshmen from the Hill. The procession was led by Miss Breese, the Senior Mistress of Ceremonies. Following her came first the Seniors in caps and gowns over their white dresses; then the Juniors, gowned in white, wearing white hats trimmed with yellow pansies, and carrying garlands of leaves; then the Sophomores, representing Kate Greenaway figures, and then the Freshmen, representing flowers and fairies. The procession was very beautiful as it wound back and forth over the green lawn. The Junior and the Senior processions made a striking contrast; the Sophomores, in their dainty flowered gowns with short waists and mob caps or in old-fashioned smocks and felt hats or in capes and queer Greenaway bonnets were picturesque and quaint; while the Freshmen, the prevailing color of whose dress was that of their class flower, the yellow marguerite, and whose dancers were dressed as different kinds of brightly-colored flowers made the procession gay indeed.

When, after the first march, all the classes had found their places on the hillside, Anne Orr, the Senior President, gave an address of welcome, then the Senior Orator, Natalie Smith, addressed the Juniors, Sophomores and Freshmen in a speech both witty and wise. Then Jane Breese, the Mistress of Ceremonies, recited the class poem, which was written by Miss Smith, and which gave, with much poetic feeling, the scheme of the senior dances.

Chords of stately music sounded, and down the hill from the Art Building came a band of white-robed singing priestesses of Bacchus crowned with chaplets of oak leaves and carrying golden cymbals, pipes, and lyres. They passed behind the evergreen trees at the left of the lawn, led by their high priestess, Florence Snow. Meantime Bacchus, personated by Mary Follett, appeared in the foreground, robed in purple and crowned with leaves. From Longfellow Pond came dancing a band of nymphs, led by Bessie Allen, and dressed in different shades of green. They circled around Bacchus to pay their devotions to him. The priestesses, rapt in their own devotions, came gliding around the cluster of trees and were startled at the sight of the dancing nymphs, whom they watched with wonder and amazement. Then from the direction of Longfellow Pond came dancing Bacchantes, clad in different shades of purple, crowned with chaplets of leaves and each carrying a thyrsis. The nymphs ran off in affright and the Bacchantes circled around Bacchus in a merry dance. As they again danced away among the trees, the nymphs returned and Bacchus crowned Ariadne with a crown of leaves, and led her away, followed by the dancing nymphs. The priestesses resumed their chanting song as they moved off behind the trees.

"Bacchus, god of the purple vine!
Beautiful god of the golden face,
Joyful thou speedest upon the chase,
While gay we dance in the bright sunshine.

Music of shepherd's pipes and flutes,
Chaplets of oak leaves round our hair,
Thus do we worship the god so fair,
Hail to thee! god of the green earth's fruits."

The procession of all the classes passed across the lawn once more, and when all were again seated on the hillside, the Freshman Mistress of Ceremonies introduced the Freshman Orator, Maud Thayer, whose oration was heartily cheered. Helen Schermerhorn of 1906 then presented the spade to Caroline Gilbert, 1907. Both the speech of presentation and that of acceptance were amusing with the friendly irony one always expects at such times, and were much appreciated.

MINNIE BURR,
Freshman Mistress of Ceremonies.

After this the Freshmen ranged themselves in a wide semicircle on the opposite side of the lawn, making a bright background for the dancers. In the foreground the garden flowers were preparing for a ball. Fairies in white dresses danced among them inspecting their costumes, while at one side a chorus sang the words of the little fairy story written by Marie Warren, which the flowers and fairies were acting in pantomime. Heartsease came in and went to each flower in turn, begging admission to the ball, but each one scorned her. Sybil Burton, the fairy queen, indicated that she must first make a mortal happy, and so she danced away.

The second part of the dance showed a prince and a princess wandering to and fro, but unable to find each other because of the mist over their eyes. Heartsease came and took away the veil from the prince's eyes, and he in turn lifted the veil from the face of the sleeping princess. The fairy queen entered, joining their hands, and admitting Heartsease to the ball. All the flowers and the fairies then danced together, gradually moving away behind the leafy screens, while Mildred Rogers and Marie Warren closed the dance with a little pantomime in which a big red rose played an important part.

The Freshmen then hurried away to the Hill to sing their class song and give their Examinations fall, like the rain, on the just as well as on the unjust; and by some strange law of nature, it is not always the unjust who fear them the most. Few of us, perhaps, acquire that most desirable frame of mind in which we can enter an examination room with no feeling more poignant than curiosity. Yet this is the ideal way to take examinations. It is not the intention of COLLEGE NEWS to waste good paper and ink in giving advice to the anxious, pale-faced throng who are just beginning examinations. No; for as long as there are examinations to take, people will cram for them, even up to the last minute. People will sit up far into the wee, small hours to study, in spite of maxims, health, and all such minor considerations. We will merely express at this serious hour, one good wish for all students except the Seniors, who do not need it: May you keep your wits about you, may your funds of knowledge yield compound interest in ink, and may your blue books be models of neatness and wells of useful information.

NOTICE.

The Editors regret to say that owing to circumstances over which they have no control, this is the last number of the News for the college year. Further news may be found in the next number of The Wellesley Magazine.

cheer around their tulip tree. Other classes, both old and new, gathered around their own trees in pleasant little reunions. The class of 1905 planted a rosebush down toward the Chapel, as the beginning of a rose-walk which it is hoped the uneven classes may cherish as the even classes do the ivy. The day closed with President Hazard's supper for the Seniors given in Stone Hall Hollow.

Hail the class of 1907!
Class of Wellesley, strong and free!
May our thoughts of thee forever
Tender, true and noble be—
May our heart's devotion serve thee,
Stand for thee where'er we go—
While the tulip's quivering foliage
Feels for us thro' weal or woe.

2.

May we knowledge gain for service,
Learn its priceless worth to use—
And the golden daisy's petals
Stand for virtues, tried and proved.
May we feel the power in us
Born in man and sent from God—
Strive to rise and wavering never,
Serve our class and college proud.

COLLEGE NOTES.

Professor Cummings has left the hospital and is now with her sister, Mrs. E. A. Whitney, 10 Maple street, Newton. Professor Cummings will take her Sabbatical year next year. During her absence Associate Professor Ferguson will have charge of the Botany Department.

Tuesday evening, May 31, Professor Yerkes of Harvard University lectured before the advanced class in Zoology. His subject was "Instinct."

Thursday afternoon, June 2, the Juniors were seen starting out in all directions. The Sophomores in friendly spirit hastened to accompany them to the place of forensic burning. Shortly after eight o'clock a long line of sheet-robed figures, bearing lighted candles wound its way through the Campus to College Hall uttering, as they marched, the customary dirge followed by a groan in all keys. After marching about in center, they went over on the Hill where they gave many a rousing cheer.

Misses Ainslee, Wilcox, Landis, Warren, Hull, Torrey, Jenkins, Conover, Schopperle, Roberts, Rodgers, Buhlert, Metcalf, and Lukens, of the class of 1903, returned to College for Tree Day.

Miss Edith Whitney, Miss Jessie Post and Miss Rita Dennis, formerly of 1906, returned to College for Tree Day.

Miss Katherine H. Macy, 1904, is to be in the High School of Grinnell, Iowa, next year.

The new officers of the Alliance Francaise, elected on June 2, are Ruth de Rochemont, President; Esther Schwarz, Vice-President; Florence McCormick, Secretary; Lottie Hartwell, Treasurer; Georgina Silicox, Maud Collier and Gladys Wells, Advisory Committee.

The semi-annual convention of the Mass. Y. W. C. T. U., was held at Watertown, Mass., May 26-28, to which the Somerset Y sent four delegates. A very encouraging report was given because of the broadening interests of the Somerset Y in charities —in sending both flowers to the sick poor in Boston, and boxes of literature to the soldiers and sailors. At the close of the convention all the delegates were entertained at Wellesley.

The officers of Somerset Y for next year are as follows:
Mary Philipps, President.
Harriet Foss, Secretary.
Marion Stephenson, General Aid Committee of the C. A.

The annual contest for the Hunnewell cup was held Monday morning, June 6. The crews of 1904, 1905 and 1906 rowed from Hunnewell Cove to Tupelo, after which the cup was awarded to 1904 for having the best general form.

A Silver Bay Rally will be held by Longfellow Pond, Sunday afternoon, June 12. Miss Louise W. Allen, 1904, will lead.

Miss Elvira Slack has accepted the General Secretaryship of the Christian Association for next year.

The Southern Club was entertained by Miss Moffett, Tuesday evening, June 7.

SENIOR POEM—THE VISION.

The pillared temple glimmers through the trees,
The grass is warm unto our dancing feet;
O priestesses of joy, if we should meet
A happy faun on river reeds a-playing,
Our great god Dionysius to please,
In truth, our hearts would be too full for praying.

A gleam of white among the gray tree-boles!
Sisters, I saw a lovely clinging arm,
Like dryad's of the golden days. No harm
May come to us; be not afraid. And there
Soft-stealing from the pleasant river-shoals,
Come nymphs, like green leaves fluttering through the air.

Their feet scarce stir the tender blades of grass,
So light their dancing. Round one form they twine,
Who wears the purple of the fruiting vine.
That such a sight should greet these earthly eyes!
It is our mighty lord! As in a glass
The isle of Naxos now before us lies.

For see, 'tis gentle Ariadne leads
The festal dance. Dried are her falling tears
For the lost lover and the lonely years.
Now sweeping down the hillside comes a throng
Of leaping maenads, searching through the meads
And groves for their great leader, lost too long.

The startled nymphs to shelter swiftly fly,
But as the revellers go leaping past,
They timidly return. The god at last
Eludes his watchful band, and to the fair
Young Ariadne hastens. Lifting high
The Crown of Joy, he lays it on her hair.

Saw we our god a moment since? 'Twas so,
Yet he is past. What moved among the trees?
Methought a green robe fluttered,—nay, the breeze
But stirred the little branches. Strike our lutes,
Ye favored of the gods, and loudly blow
The merry music from your sylvan flutes!

The Springfield Wellesley Club which is a branch of the Connecticut Valley Wellesley Club reports a membership of fifty-eight. Besides their annual luncheon with the Hartford Club, held last fall at the Hartford Golf Club House, this club has had several enjoyable meetings during the year. Through Miss Antoinette Bigelow, 1893, they have become interested in the work among the Mountain Whites of Kentucky and a few of the members met twice a week during the winter to sew for the mountaineers. The last event of the year is to be an informal good time at the home of Mrs. Annie Coomes Leete 1880-1881 in Longmeadow.

Extract from a Letter from Dr. Hume.

Panchgani, Ahmednagar, India,
April 22, 1904.

Thank you very much for writing to me first without waiting for my promised letter. I wish other students would do the same. I suppose you wish to learn something of the doings of Miss Campbell and myself. Although we have not been working in the hospital, we have been working on it and towards it, hoping to be in the hospital itself by the time the College year closes. I have made two hundred calls, have seen patients at Dr. Beal's dispensary three times a week, have assisted in operations and operated myself. By June, Miss Campbell and I shall be able to talk Marathi better, we shall know the people, their habits and customs, and the hospital will be better fitted for occupancy.

We are having furniture of various kinds made for it. The drug room is on the south side, the linen room on the north side, with the dirt kitchen adjoining, where milk and broths may be kept and quickly heated on a blue flame kerosene stove which I brought from America. As is customary, in this country, the kitchen proper is a separate building at some distance from the house.

The Wellesley College operating room is in the northeast corner, second floor, with a sterilizing room and an anaesthetizing room adjoining. The operating room is laid in tiles and painted pure white, the wards being light green with stone floors.

An instrument case of glass doors and sides will stand in the corner of the operating room with stands beside it for bowls of solution in which to wash both hands and instruments.

When it is all fitted up, you shall have a picture.

Some day before long, we must have a proper sterilizer, at the cost of $300.00. I brought a couple of smaller ones for temporary use; the larger one will be necessary. I shall have $150 left from the $500 given by the College for fitting up the operating room. If you could give me another $150 next year, I think we shall be able to order the sterilizer from America. I would even rather have the sterilizer than a box next year. After the hospital is open, I shall write you of our needs early in the College year.

I am sending you a picture of the hospital building and also a picture of my sister, Hannah Hume Lee, Miss Campbell and myself taken on the hospital steps. I hope Wellesley will not feel we have done nothing although the hospital is not yet opened

This is Friday, the day for sending homeward mail; also the day of strength coming with the thought of the Thursday-evening prayer meeting just passed and the lifting of the heart to God for us.

Sincerely yours,
RUTH PEABODY HUME.

The pictures are posted on the Association bulletin board. The lattice around the balcony and entire second floor is due to the prejudices of the country which do not allow women to be seen in public.

Here feast I at my Father's board,
Who starved among the swine;
For me must every foot be fleet
And every lamp must shine;
For me the merry music sounds,
The dancers dip and twine.

My heart beats fast against my robe,
The best robe, soft and red;
With sobbing breath and tightening throat
And tears in rapture shed,
I feel His ring upon my hand,
His blessing on my head.

Ah! bitter was the way, and oft
My blood my path would trace;
And guilt and grief and stabbing shame
With all my steps kept pace;
And yet I famished not for bread
So sore as for His face.

The road seemed endless. On I fared,
Wresting each mile from death;
Then such an awe upon me fell
I scarce could draw my breath;
My spirit felt His coming as
Of one that succoreth.

Blind, fainting, to His mighty breast
He caught and held me fast;
I knew the fortress of His arms
About my weakness cast;
And, when He kissed my traitor cheek,
I guessed His heart at last.

The piteous words I oft had conned
I trembling strove to say;
But sudden glory round me poured
A brighter, richer day.
In wonderment I lifted up
My head that drooping lay.

The glory streamed from out His eyes,
As from all Beauty's throne.
O depths of love unthinkable
That in their splendor shone!
O pain of love that travaileth
And bleedeth for its own!

O gleam of wisdom hoar with eld
Ere sang the stars of morn!
O blending, shifting, dazzling lights
That thrilled my hope forlorn
To undreamed miracles of joy
And surge of life reborn!

. . . . . .

He brought me home, and here I sit,
Even in my boyhood's place;
And on my very soul is stamped
Each largess of His grace;
But still transfiguring all, I see
That radiance of His face.

Library Apprentice Class at Columbia University.

Owing to the recent extension of the responsibility of the Librarian at Columbia University to cover the administration of the libraries of all institutions affiliated with Columbia and all department libraries, it is possible to grant special opportunities to those desiring to familiarize themselves with the various forms of library work. Accordingly, Columbia will receive five apprentices for the coming academic year. No formal entrance examination is required, but preference will be given to those who are college bred; and the minimum educational preparation must be at least the equivalent of two years' work in a college of approved standing. No compensation will be given other than the personal instruction, the opportunity to observe, the opportunity for practice work under competent supervision, and the fact that, although no position is guaranteed in selections for the staff of this library, preference will naturally be given to those who have had this training and experience.

The work of the apprentices will be under the general direction and supervision of Miss Harriet B. Prescott, to whom all applications should be addressed. Such applications should be in the handwriting of the applicant, and should state full name and age, present address, permanent address, education (in some detail,) and names and addresses of at least two references. These letters should be filed before June 15. Selections will be announced by mail not later than July 1.

Abstract from the Library Journal, May, 1904.

NOTICES.

The English Literature Department reports that the receipts from "The Goose Girl" amounted to nearly three hundred dollars and that a little over one hundred and thirty dollars remains to be presented to the Spanish School for girls at Madrid. Exact figures will be given later when all reports are in.

For aid given in raising this sum the Department wishes to extend its thanks to Miss Hazard, through whose kindness the grounds were made ready without charge; to the students, whose fine courtesy of helpfulness has never been more apparent than on this occasion; to Mrs. Nias and Mrs. Whiton for help in catering to the small guests; to Mr. Perkins of the College; to Mr. Shattuck of Wellesley; to Messrs. Sturdevant and Haley, provision merchants of Boston, who generously remitted the whole of their bill in behalf of the cause; to the Boston Transcript for its courtesy in advertising, and last, but not least, to the owners of the enchanted pony and its gallant little master.

Miss Louise Tewksbury, 1900, of 51 N. Broadway, Tarrytown, N.Y., is to have a camp for girls in the Catskills this summer where there will be much out-of-door life, with tennis, golf, boating, and driving. Address her for particulars.
